Worthington Cylinders Announces Price Increase on Steel and Aluminum Propane Cylinders

COLUMBUS, Ohio, April 5, 2010 --- Worthington Cylinders, a Worthington Industries (NYSE: WOR) company, today announced an 8% price increase on all steel and aluminum propane cylinders.

“Raw material prices have steadily advanced over the past few months,” said Dusty McClintock, Vice President of Sales and Marketing for Worthington Cylinders. “Every effort as been made to minimize the impact of rising material costs on our customers. However, recent raw material pricing has significantly escalated our production costs.”

Prices will increase with all steel and aluminum propane cylinders shipped on or after May 15, 2010, or as current agreements allow.
